

Can you imagine that more than 2 billion people around the world use cash only, while suffering from poverty and fighting for their lives every single day? In addition, they do not have any access to modern banking services. Getting a loan for them is a huge problem, since they do not have any credit history.

Now, for any business, this is a tremendous amount of new data and potential customers. Existing businesses do not have any information about the above-mentioned people's creditworthiness and refuse to deal with them, because it's considered to be risky and uncertain service.

Nevertheless, these people still need money, and businesses need new customers.
